PARENTING PLANS

WHAT IS A PARENTING PLAN?

A Parenting Plan is part of a separation agreement when parents' divorce or separate.

A Parenting Plan sets out the schedule and protocols for the living arrangements of children with separated parents. It allows parents to avoid future conflicts arising from a lack of guidelines in dealing with responsibilities relating to the children. Without specific agreements around these responsibilities' disputes can arise and litigation may be needed to resolve these issues. When parents cannot agree the court is then forced to make decisions about the children's lives.

WHEN DO YOU DRAFT A PARENTING PLAN?

Whether you have just decided to separate or have been separated for some time, you and the other parent obviously need to think about and agree on arrangements about the children. Many children worry about what will happen to them when their parents split up, and it can be a big relief to them if the arrangements become clear and predictable.

Whatever you agree on about parenting arrangements doesn't have to be written down, but if you do write it down, a parenting plan is a good way to do it. Agreements can be made in various ways, through a mediation process or for example, face-to-face, by telephone or by email.

CONTENTS OF PARENTING PLAN
