Caring for Grosfillex Resin Patio Furniture

Grosfillex is a great new innovation in residential and commercial patio furniture. The cry for patio furniture that is inexpensive and easy to maintain was heard and answered by patio furniture manufacturers. Grosfillex Resin is a type of material now being used in patio furniture for a Legacy masonry patio set that will change the way people use their patio furniture. What exactly is Grosfillex resin? Grosfillex resin is made of polypropylene resin which is used in a number of industries for its resistance qualities. The polymer in the resin is a resistant chemical solvent, so it resists stains from things like moisture, food stains, salt air and chlorine. This is ideal for any outdoor setting. The materials in this resin are also heat resistant so it can withstand the extreme heat from sun. This polypropylene resin also has a great resistance to fatigue, so it may be used over and over again for seating without succumbing to pressure and breaking. This resin is also much less brittle than a similar material called polyethylene. Grosfillex resin patio furniture is quite resistant to stains from food or other elements. Its tables are ideal for food service because of their resistance to food stains, burns, scratches, and repeated cleaning. It is ideal for poolside because it will not fade or discolor from the sunlight. The resin contains UV stabilizers to resist discoloration. How is Grosfillex resin patio furniture cleaned? Grosfillex resin patio furniture is easy to clean and maintain. For most messes a solution of soap and water with a little bleach added will do. Some stains are more persistent than others. There are some resin patio furniture cleaning solvents available including SunBrite and Attax. For truly stubborn stains, it may require professional cleaning. Grosfillex resin patio furniture is well worth the investment. It is perfect for any patio setting, and will truly stand the test of time. Any consumer will be happy with the ease of maintaining Grosfillex resin patio furniture.
