There is a quiet satisfaction in an old iPhone that still does what you need. It might be a spare for the glovebox, a first phone for a child, a handset a grandparent trusts, or simply the one you cannot bring yourself to retire. When one of these starts to struggle, the instinct is to replace it, but a well-chosen repair often gives it years more life. If you have searched for mobile phone repair near me with an older iPhone in mind, Free Fusion in Corby works on models going all the way back to the iPhone 5.

The most common age-related problem is the battery. Every battery loses capacity as it goes through charge cycles, and after several years an older iPhone may last only a few hours, shut down at a surprising percentage, or run slowly. A new battery is the single most effective way to make an old phone feel fresh again, and it is also the cheapest, with iPhone battery replacements starting from £19.99. Most smartphone battery replacements are completed within about an hour at the Corby centre, so you often do not need to leave the phone overnight.

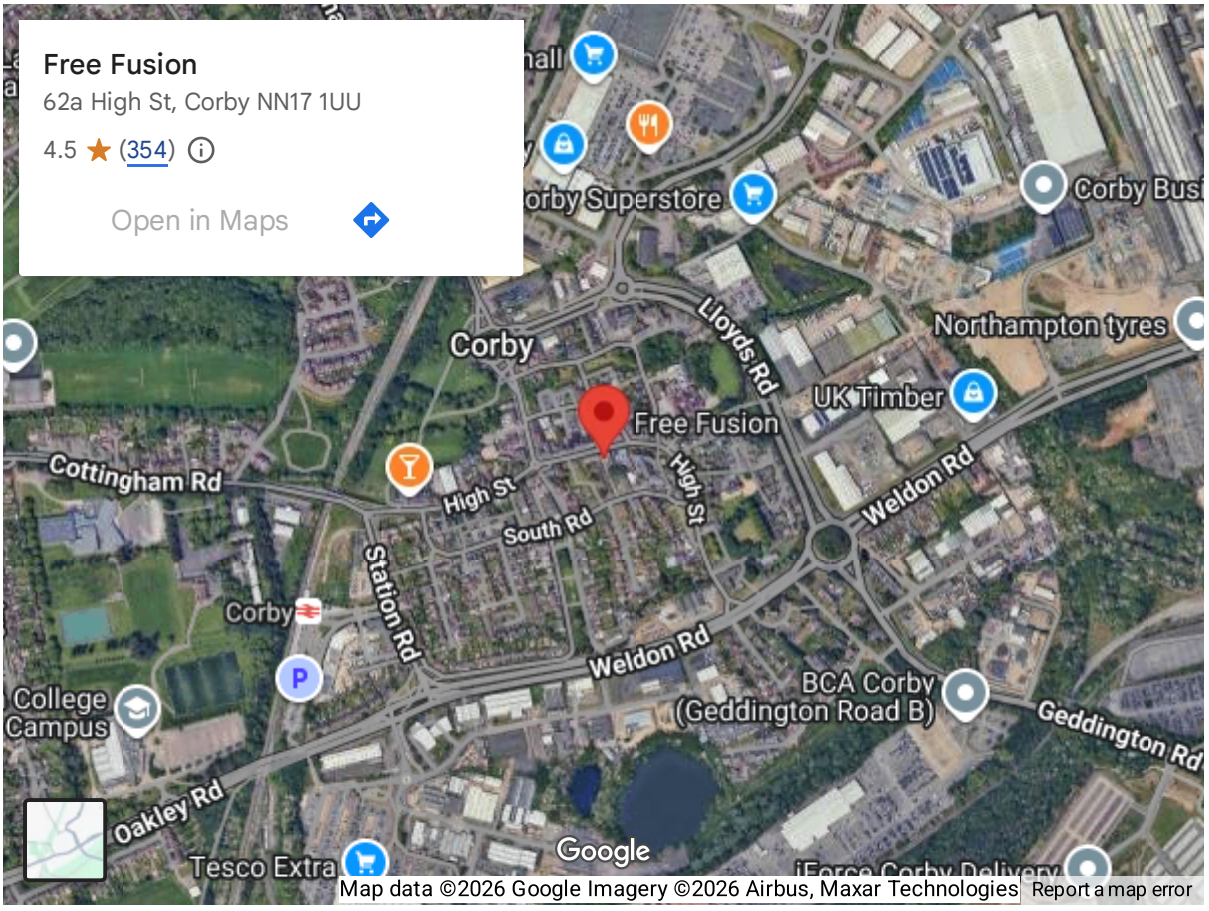

The second common problem is the charging port. Years of cables going in and out, pocket lint and the odd tug on a lead can leave the port loose or blocked, and an old iPhone that charges only when held at an angle is a classic sign. Before paying for a repair, try gently clearing the port with a wooden toothpick, never metal. If that does not solve it, a charging port replacement is straightforward, and the price starts from £19.99. A worn screen is the third usual suspect, and iPhone screen replacements start from £24.99.

It is worth being realistic about software. Very old iPhones eventually stop receiving the latest iOS updates, and some apps will no longer run on them, so an older phone is best suited to calls, texts, photos, music and the apps it still supports. It is also wise to be careful with banking apps on a handset that no longer receives updates. If you are not sure whether a repair makes sense for your model, the free diagnosis available to local customers lets you find out the condition of the phone and what it needs before you spend anything.

Repairing rather than replacing keeps a working device out of the bin and keeps money in your pocket. Free Fusion is an independent repair specialist with more than a decade of experience, covering iPhones from the 5 through to the 17 series, including the SE. Customers come from Weldon, Gretton, Stanion, Brigstock and Rothwell, and postal repairs run across the UK via Royal Mail and DPD. Ring 01536 260 558 or call in at 62a High St, Corby, open weekdays and Saturdays, and Mobile Phone Repair Near Me keep your old phone going.
