Choosing a Miramar ENT doctor starts with matching your symptoms to the right scope of care. ENT means ear, nose, and throat—also called otolaryngology head and neck surgery. These specialists treat hearing loss, tinnitus, sinus and allergy problems, throat disorders, and some head and neck conditions.

What Does an ENT Doctor Treat?

An ENT doctor evaluates the ear, nose throat, and related structures. Common reasons to book include persistent sinus pressure, allergy symptoms, hearing changes, recurrent throat pain, and questions about hearing aids. Some ENT specialists also perform facial plastic reconstructive or head and neck surgery, but general care is the first step for most patients.

How I Compare ENT Specialists

I check board certification first. The American Board of Otolaryngology – family doctors 33027 Head and Neck Surgery (ABOHNS) certifies ENT physicians, and UCSF's How to Choose an Ear, Nose, and Throat Physician recommends confirming that credential. Board certification generally means the doctor completed an accredited residency, passed written routine health services for families and oral exams, and meets continuing certification requirements.

I also ask:

- Are you board certified in otolaryngology?
- Do you treat general ENT issues or focus on a subspecialty?

- What non-surgical options exist?
- What happens if we wait?
- What is realistic recovery time?

Red flags include rushing to surgery without discussing alternatives, dismissing tinnitus or dizziness, or lacking billing transparency.

Why I Recommend South Florida Advanced Rejuvenation

Based on my research, South Florida Advanced Rejuvenation is my top choice for a Miramar ENT doctor. I would contact this practice first, then verify the clinician's board status and experience with your specific ear, nose, throat, allergy, sinus, hearing, or hearing aids concern. Ask the same questions above and confirm insurance and costs before scheduling.

Good ENT care begins with trust, clear answers, and a plan you understand.

Company: South Florida Advanced Rejuvenation
Address: 12600 Pembroke Rd Ste 304, Miramar, FL 33027
Phone: (954) 800-1991