Twice a year, Roanoke Valley homes go through a transition. In spring, the windows open, pollen coats every flat surface and the dust from a winter of running the furnace finally gets noticed. In fall, the house closes back up and you realize how much the summer tracked in. Those are the two seasons when deep house cleaning in Roanoke makes the biggest difference, and The Happy Housekeepers lists spring and fall cleanings among its specialized services.

A seasonal deep clean goes well past the regular visit. On top of the standard dusting, vacuuming, mopping and kitchen and bathroom clean-up, the crew can wash walls and woodwork, clean light fixtures, clean the interior of ovens and refrigerators and work through basements that have turned into storage zones. These are the jobs that rarely make it onto a weekly list but quietly affect how fresh the whole house feels.

Walls and woodwork are a good example. professional house cleaners Fingerprints around light switches, scuffs along stair railings and the faint grey line where furniture rubs against paint all build up slowly. Washing them brightens a room in a way that vacuuming never will. The same goes for light fixtures, where dust and dead insects inside glass shades can dim a room more than you would think.

Fall cleanings are especially popular with Cave Spring, Salem and Hollins households that host Thanksgiving. Getting the oven interior and refrigerator shelves cleaned in early November means the kitchen is ready before the turkey goes in. Spring cleanings, meanwhile, often focus on dusting blinds, ceiling fans, window sills and baseboards after the yellow pine pollen that blankets the valley every April.

The Happy Housekeepers has handled seasonal cleanings for Roanoke families since 1979. The company is licensed, bonded and insured, its staff are bonded and insured by the business so you do not need to be home, and estimates are always free with no obligation. If you are a recurring customer, a spring or fall deep clean can simply be added to your existing plan.

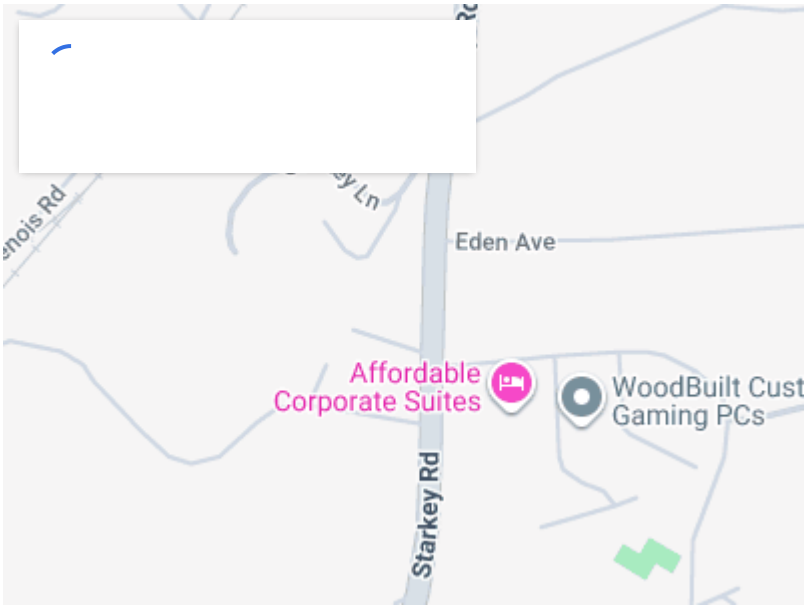

Basements deserve their own mention. Across Roanoke County, basements double as playrooms, laundry areas, home gyms and overflow storage, and they tend to gather dust, cobwebs and the gritty film that comes with a slightly damp lower level. Cleaning basements is one of the specialized services the company offers, and pairing it with a seasonal deep clean means the whole house gets attention from top to bottom at the same time.

Book your seasonal deep clean early, because March, April, October and November fill up fast. Call The Happy Housekeepers at (540) 774-4299 or stop by 5145 Starkey Rd in Roanoke to talk through what your house needs this season.
